

IF I WERE A SUPERHERO, WHAT WOULD BE MY KRYPTONITE?

If I could choose to be a superhero, I would undoubtedly choose Superman. He is my favorite superhero. He has lots of superpowers. He can fly, is strong, has super hearing and also has x-ray vision. His only weakness is kryptonite. There are many other superheroes, but in my opinion, they aren't as good.

For instance, I find Batman relatively "normal". His abilities depend more on his wealth rather than on any real powers. That said, Batman's weakness would be poverty. But what would be my kryptonite?

If I were a superhero, I think my weakness would be my constant worry about things and others. I would probably try to help everybody neglecting my own well-being. As I grow-up, I'm becoming more and more assertive but the enhanced ability to hear would make me hear other people crying for help from far away.

This realization would be very unbearable. This reminds me of Daredevil. This superhero had to sleep in an isolated hermetically sealed bathtub so he wouldn't listen to what was happening in the rest of the world.

However, as Spiderman's uncle said, with great power comes great responsibility. I believe that it would be great to be a superhero. Nevertheless, if I had super heard powers like Superman, I would be left with two options: I would have to learn to be more assertive and a little bit selfish or I would have to buy good earplugs.